She took this initiative so that her friends and classmates could get a chance to be part of something bigger. Deepiga and her team were able to support 47 families with donations, including clothes, food, and medicine. The children had a wonderful time interacting with their families and spreading love and care. This project-based learning experience has motivated the students to continue working on similar initiatives.

For updates and more information, please follow Teach for India on Instagram and Facebook. You can also visit their website at teachforindia.org.

---

Pratyay Malakar, a student at Teach for India, shares her story of how she and her classmates have been working together to support their community during the pandemic. They have been organizing online workshops, teaching them once again—full of emotion and digital tools.

With the outbreak of the pandemic, they have been working from home,productively. She’s been watching a lot of inspiring stories of kindness, courage and goodwill. Stories of teachers who are adapting and overcoming challenges.

Pandemic, we have no choice but to stay together. A crisis brings out the character of people. Although we are stuck in our homes, we can still do our bit in helping others. Let’s come together and create a world where no one is left behind.

---

TFAll has put together a series of Complimentary workshops for teams who are virtual. The webinars are designed to help teams stay connected and motivated during these challenging times.

The Happy Newsletter is a platform where people can share their stories of kindness, courage, and goodwill. The newsletter has been a great way to bring people together and celebrate their undying spirit.

For more updates on Dream a Dream, follow them on Instagram, Twitter, and Facebook. You can also visit their website at dreamadream.org.

---

Citizens For Public Leadership is an organization that is working to bridge the gap between young citizens and institutional heads. Their latest report revolves around spreading awareness and promoting inclusion in the policy and governance space.

For more updates on Global Young Social Entrepreneurs, follow them on Instagram and Twitter. You can also visit their website at gyse.io.

---

Akhanksha Foundation has launched a counseling helpline to provide support to families during the pandemic. They have also launched a series of Complimentary workshops for teams who are virtual.

Akanksha Foundation’s approach during this time of crisis is to keep people safe and informed. They have been working tirelessly to provide help and hope.

For more updates on Global Young Social Entrepreneurs, follow them on Instagram and Twitter. You can also visit their website at gyse.io.

---

Teach For India has put together an online campaign called 'Hand For Humanity'. The campaign has been a huge success, with thousands of people contributing to the relief efforts.

Peer-to-peer support is a crucial aspect of the campaign. People from across the country have come together to help each other.

For more updates on Teach For India, follow them on Instagram and Facebook. You can also visit their website at teachforindia.org.

---

Pratyay Malakar, a student at Teach for India, shares her story of how she and her classmates have been working together to support their community during the pandemic. They have been organizing online workshops, teaching them once again—full of emotion and digital tools.

With the outbreak of the pandemic, they have been working from home,productively. She’s been watching a lot of inspiring stories of kindness, courage and goodwill. Stories of teachers who are adapting and overcoming challenges.

Pandemic, we have no choice but to stay together. A crisis brings out the character of people. Although we are stuck in our homes, we can still do our bit in helping others. Let’s come together and create a world where no one is left behind.

---

TFAll has put together a series of Complimentary workshops for teams who are virtual. The webinars are designed to help teams stay connected and motivated during these challenging times.

The Happy Newsletter is a platform where people can share their stories of kindness, courage, and goodwill. The newsletter has been a great way to bring people together and celebrate their undying spirit.

For more updates on Dream a Dream, follow them on Instagram, Twitter, and Facebook. You can also visit their website at dreamadream.org.

---

Citizens For Public Leadership is an organization that is working to bridge the gap between young citizens and institutional heads. Their latest report revolves around spreading awareness and promoting inclusion in the policy and governance space.

For more updates on Global Young Social Entrepreneurs, follow them on Instagram and Twitter. You can also visit their website at gyse.io.